THE DEMOCRATIC RALLY LAST NIGHT

Cobb From Texas and Roberts Of Utah Address a Large Gathering.

LATTER MAKES SOME DENIALS.

Declares He Has Been Set Apart by No One to Assist in Election of Judge Powers.

The Democratic rally arranged for the Salt Lake Theater last night was probably just ar large as though Bourke Cockran had been the speaker instead of Messrs, Z. L. Cobb of Texas and B. H. Roberts of Utah. The stage was filled as was also the main auditorium, to standing room only, while the first and second gallery seats were all occu-pled, with the same condition obtaining in the greater portion of the third.

The meeting was called to order by Simon Bamberger, the state chairman, who explained the unavoidable absence of Mr. Cockran on account of failure to make proper train connections. But to make proper train connections. But he assured the audience that it would not be disappointed. Hon: F. S. Richards was introduced as the chairman of the meeting. Mr. Richards made a felicitous and well worded speech and first introduced Mr. Cobb. "The Texas Spellbinder, who has done more," he said, "to dissipate dyapepsia in this campaign by his inimitable stories than any other man."

any other man." After that he presented Mr. Roberts After that he presented Mr. Roberts as the Bourke Cockran of Utah. Mr. Roberts commenced to speak at a few minutes past nine and held the great audience until six minutes of th. Constitutional morality, political fidelity the Panama controversy, reciprocity and other public questions comprised the principal part of his theme though local candidates and conditions received considerable attention. The charge of the Tribune that the speaker had been set apart by President Smith had been set apart by President Smith to see to it that Judge Powers was elected to Congress, was hotly denied. Held's band furnished the music o the evening and several vocal selections were rendered by Miss Jennie Thomp-son of Provo, accompanied by Miss

MR. COBB OF TEXAS.

Spellbinder from Lone Star State AMost Pleasing Speaker.

Mr. Cobb of Texas proved himself to be a very entertaining talker. He had not been on the floor long before the audience found that out. He changed easily, quickly, from the serious to the story teiling style and when his story was given it invariably convuised the house. In conclusion ne said that he had found such a hospitality in this state that not even the great and open hearted south could equal. He wanted it known that wherever he went his voice would be raised for the people of Utah. When they were spoken evilly of in him they would always find a detender. But, said he with a merry twinkle in his eye, while his voice be-trayed an affected pathos: "There is one thing I must say in all serious-ness before taking my leave of you, and that is that I have a grudge against the women of Utah. Before I left home I bade my Mary a long and affectionate farewell. I looked into her eyes as blue as the sky and told her that I would love her forever and that she was the most beautiful woman I ever saw. But since coming to Utah and seeing your girls, I have had to take that back ten times." (Great laughter

Cobb said he was at a loss to understand why it was necessary for a party with as many able speakers as the Democracy has, to send for him. After paying many compliments to Messrs, Roberts, Moyle and Powers, Mr. Cobb told of hearing a Republican orator in Utah claim for the Republicans the credit for the irrigation law, although it was introduced by a Demo-crat, passed the house over the votes of the Republican leaders and passed the senate without a Democratic vote being cast against it. The Democrats, Mr. Cobb said, were blamed for the hard times of '33, which came as a result of a law passed and signed during a Republican administration. The hard times of that period, Mr. Cobb said, were charged to a Democratic tariff, when, as a matter of fact, the Depres sion began before the Democrats came into power, and more than a year be-fore the enactment of the Wilson tariff law. This Republican speaker claimed that the sun was a Republican institution and the moon a Republican invention. He even amended the Bible to read that under the Roosevelt administration Theodore Roosevelt made headers and county in six days, yet kept on ven and earth in six days, yet kept on working on the seventh day.

The trust evil was pronounced by Mr. Cobb the greatest menace to the people of the country. He told of his personal experiences at his home in El Paso. where he was forced to buy trust-made goods at higher prices than the peo-ple across the line in Mexico were forced to pay for the same articles. The forced to pay for the same articles. The direct effect of fostering the trusts was shown as affecting the farmer through the prices he was forced to pay for his tools and implements—prices higher than the same articles made by the same firms sell for abroad. The same, he contended, is true as to breycles, typewriters and an innumerable list of commodities. He recommended the abolition of the tariff on all trust-made articles and the enforcement of the trust laws against all trusts just as the Republican president enforced it against one trust—the Northern Securities company. Mr. Cobb said he was opposed to the abolition of the tariff on wool and promised that if the Democratic party were ised that if the Democratic party were put in power it would raise the tariff on sugar beets so that Philippine sugar would not be brought into competition with the product of Utah.

But a new administration is needed to accomplish the reform, Mr. Cobb said. With Cortalyou, former secre-tary of commerce and labor, receiving Republican campaign contributions from the same t usts against which he rolds information further prosecution of the trusts is a remote possibility. Western people especially were interested, he said, because the people of the west reap not a single benefit from

After again complimenting Mr. Moyle After again complimenting Mr. Moyle and Judge Powers, Mr. Cubb said he was going back to Texas to tell the people there that at its best Texan hospitality never exceeded that of Utab, and to tell them further, that any one who attacked the people of Utah had to answer to him. Mr. Cubb said that before leaving home he had told a cer-tain young lady there that she was the prettiest lady alive, but since coming to Utab he had been forced to take it back ten times. He closed by an eloquent tribute to Parker and Bryan.

B. H. ROBERTS' ADDRESS.

Constitutional Morality and Political Fidelity Discussed Mr. Roberts spoke in part as follows:

as an introduction to my remarks this evening. I have prepared a very pleasing reflection based upon the disappointment of the audience tonight because of the absence of that celebrated Democrat, that talented gentleman, not only of national but even of international reputation; but after witnessing your very great pleasure in listening to the wit and logic of my young friend who preceded me (Mr. Cobb), I have resolved to lay it aside as an introduction, however beautiful it might be, and congratulate you upon the fact that, congratulate you upon the fact that, if you are disappointed in listening to the celebrated orator from the state of New York, you have the very great pleasure of listening to an eloquent gentleman from Texas."

gentleman from Texas."

The speaker here read what he characterized as his text, an utterance of one of the leading jurists of the country. Hon. Jerry Black, of Pennsylvania, containing among other things the sentiment, that constitutional morality is one of the indespensible conditions upon which for success every government must depend. He then continued:

"Before entering into a discussion of this principle and the illustration of it by reference to the candidates of the respective parties for the high office by reference to the candidates of the respective parties for the high office of president of these United States, I desire to call the attention of this magnificent audience to the position that you occupy and the relation that you occupy to the great (saues of this campaign and of every other campaign that can arise in our country. I stand before the sovereigns of this country, the American people. I desire to remind you that you have no rulers, that you have no masters, for under our sys-

you have no masters, for under our sys-tem of government the people are soverelgn, and those whom we elect to office we elect not to rule us but to serve us under the prescribed limita-tions of the Constitution of our coun-

FREEDOM'S SIGNAL.

"I can think of nothing so much adding to the dignity of manhood and wa-manhood, I can think of nothing that proclaims so loudly the resolutions of free people as when I see them sit-ing in solemn counsel, as you are now, review the acts of those servants, ascertain whether they are worthy to ascertain whether they are worthy of a renewal of the power you have entrusted with them, or whether you must seek others who will serve you more faithfully; so that it is within our province to criticize those whom we entrust with power. They are not beyond our reach. The humblest citizen may say his word of praise or condemnation without being challenged concerning those who are elected to office in this our country, and in order that this right may be forever preserved to the people, the Constitution has especially declared that the freedom of speech and the freedom of the press shall not be abridged in the land.

THE POWER OF GOVERNMENT. "One other consideration, and that is,

I call your attention to what is recog-nized as modern discovery in politics. In ancient times governments were simple governments; that is, a mon-archy was an unmixed, simple or absoute form of government. The oligarchy was a pure aristocratic government, with the monarchial principle absent, and such republics as they had were what is called pure republics, that is, the people acted directly upon govern-ment. The principle of representament. The principle of representaprinciple of dividing the powers of the government into co-ordinate branches vas unknown to old governments. what is called a modern discovery in political science that we have hit upon a very happy expediency of dividing the powers of government into co-ordi-nate branches, and in our own govern-ments have the legislative or law-maks department, the executive, or law executing department, and the judicial law defining department of our govrlaw denning department of our gor-rnment, and it is a prominent principle with us that neither of these branches f government should trench upon the ights that belong to either of the other epartments. That is to say, the ex-cutive may not legislate, nor can the ecutive may not legislate, nor can the judiciary perform administrative acts, and it is admitted in all directions that the security of our liberties and the purity of government depends upon our keeping separate and apart these respective departments of government.

"So much by way of preliminary con-sideration, and now I propose to argue out this question about constitutional morality under the question whether in this country, we are to have constitutional government or government by personal caprice. I want to test it under the consideration of that question, because that, my friends, is one of the issues of this campaign, that is one of the questions that you are going to decide as sovereigns of this land, and I want to appear here, I will say now, in behalf of that government which will be properly characterized as constitutional government as against government as against government. stitutional government as against government by personal caprice. And I shall consider this question by weighing and consider this question by weighting and considering the candidates who stand prominently before you for your suffrages as president of the United States. And as I think, becomes him, I shall name first, and consider first, the first citizen of these United States, and the control of these united States, and the states, and the control of these united States, and the states, and the states, and the states of the necessary to enter into a consideration of his life, his public life previous to his nomination as a Democratic can-didate for president. His standing among those who know him, in the state of New York and in the United States, is established beyond all ques-tion as to high moral character, integity, ability competency, by the fact that in the great empire state of New York, when, in 1897 he was nominated to be the chief justice of the court of to be the chief justice of the court of appeals of that state. Notwithstanding in 1898 the Republicans had carried the state of New York by a plurality of 212,000, when Judge Parker was nominated, he carried that state for the office to which he was nominated by 60, 600 majority. That is his certificate of standing among his follows.

vention, by more than the necessary two-thirds of that convention, for his high office. The Democratic party recognizing that, at least for the time being, the great silver issue had been settled, not by any political action on the part of the Republican party, or Democratic party, but by a great natural cause, viz., a wonderfully increased production in gold, which so increased the volume of our money that the country was relieved from the oppression which it felt by reason of the inquitous legislation which some years before, under Republican auspices, had before, under Republican auspices, had stricken one of the money metals of the United States, so that the Democratic party regarded that as not an issue in the present campaign, and very properly made no allusion to it in the but the Democratic candidate at that Ume, notwithstanding that all contro-versy concerning his nomination was passed, his nomination then being an ccomplished fact, and notwithstanding accomplished fact, and notwithstanding what among ambitious men, among honorable men has always been regarded as a high praise, a great compliment, a high honor, the nomination of the Democratic party for the Presidency he insisted upon acting in the strictest regard for honesty of conduct in reference to this issue, and consequently, when he saw that there was silence upon this monentary question, in order that that there was silence upon this monentary question, in order that there should not be any misunder-standing growing out of those lines and his attitude upon the question, he sent this dispatch to the convention, addressed to the man who had his personal interests at heart and in hand:

THAT FAMOUS TELEGRAM.

"I regard the gold standard as firmly and irrevocably established, and shall act accordingly if the act of the convention today shall be ratified by the people. As the platform is silent on the subject, my views should be known to the convention, and if found to be unsatisfactory to the majority I re-quest you to decline the nomination for me, so that another may be nomi-nated before adjournment. Alton B. Parker." It is no mere common politician that will thus throw in the air so coveted a prize as the Democrati nomination for the highest office with on the gift of the people. The statesthat sentiment, by that telegram to the Democratic convention. (Loud Applause.)

RESIGNS HIS HIGH OFFICE. "Next, at the time of his nomina-

ion you must remember that he still held a high office, that of chief justice of the court of appeals of the Em-pire state. He understood under the ppointment of the convention that a ommittee of gentlemen would wait upon him to formally notify him of his nomination. In order that might meet that committee of noti-fication in the full dignity, as I take it, of a simple citizen of the United States, without pomp, without cere-mony, without a play to the gallery, without any attempt to blazon himself as something extraordinary, this candidate of ours consulted with his associates upon the bench, quietly and without estentation resigned the high position he held in the judiciary, and when the committee approached his there had fallen from his shoulders the robes of his judicial office, and from the chair of judgement, he came forth a simple citizen to meet this committee and to receive official notification of the high honor conferred upon him—a position that at least, it seems to me, the Republican candidate for vice-president would do well

PRESIDENT'S CHALLENGE.

"In the letter of acceptance issued by President Rooseveit, his acceptance of the nomination conferred upon him, there was issued to the Demo-cratic candidate a very bold, and at haracter of both of these candidates, shall ask your patience while I relate to you the circumstance; the fact and then how it was met by the Democratic nominee.

"The administration through its agency, the war department, issued very celebrated pension order, known now as Pension Order No. 78 The act of congress under which, ostensibly, the order was issued, was passed in 1899. Before the act of that year, the pensions to the war veterans were not granted except upon proof that the death or disability for which the pension was sought resulted from actual service, but this law of 1890 amended that law, as follows: That any person who had served 90 days or more and who had been hon-orably discharged should receive a pension of not less than six nor more than twelve dollars per month, if proof were furnished that he was suffering from a permanent disability not re-sulting from vicious habits which inapacited him from the performance of manual labor in such a degree as to render him unbale to earn his support. Now on that order, the second section of that law of 1890 puts every one on its individual merits, that is every case of application for pension, and leaves it for every to be determined, when due s offered of the fact of disability upon its own footing. That is the pro-vision of the law. But the department of war, with the consent and knowledge of the president of the United States, 'In the adjudication of pension claims under the act of June, 1890, as amended it shall be taken as an evident fact, I the contrary does not appear, and if a other legal requirements are properly met, that when a claimant has passe the age of 62 years he is debilitated one half in ability to perform manual labor and is entitled to be rated at $6 per month, and after 65 years, at $8 per month, and after 68 years of age, at $1 per month, and after 70 at $12.' The icts in the case are that this mean out a suspension or a nullification of a xisting law, by an executive order. other words, it becomes legislative en actment, by the executive department, and is a breech, and a serious one, in the matter of administering the laws in our land. It invades the very prohibitions that are made by the Constitution of the United States. That Presiden loosevelt is entirely in sympathy with the order is to be ascertained from the acceptance and issues a challenge to the Democratic candidate, to which I have already called attention. And now read from his message;

EXECUTIVE MESSAGE.

"It is easy to test out opponents' sin cerity in this matter. The order it question is revokable at the pleasure of the executive. If our opponents come into power, they can revoke this order. and announce that they will treat the veterans of 62 to 70 as presumably in full bodily vizor and not entitled to pensions. Will they now authoritatively state that they intend to do this? If so, we accept the issue; if not, then we have the right to ask why they raise an issue which, when raised, they do not venture to meet.

PARKER'S POSITION.

"That is the challenge I referred to and I want to call your attention to th manner in which the Democratic candi date for President meets such a chal-lenge. In his letter of acceptance, he directly referred to this subject, and meets it in this way. By the way, the Republican president attempted to jus-tify his associates as to this order, which was an order issued under the sanction of his administration, by claiming that a former Democratic president had done something very imilar, and upon that head listen to

BEAR STEAKS IN ORDER.

Gabriel Johnson Brings Bruin's Carcass to Town After Exciting Hunt.

Bear meat is liable to swamp the market this fall. Since the first shipment from Farmington several days ago, Parley's canyon residents have entered the business, and yesterday sent in a first installment of 400 pounds. They promise two more shipments within the week.

The latest kill was made by Gabriel Johnson, in the Old Arm Chair fork of Parley's Canyon. He was out hunting for deer in the cliff's dividing Parley's from Mill Creek canyon Sunday and had tramped about all day, without seeing even so much as a track. About seeing even so much as a track. About five o'clock he sat down to rest on a rock, and on looking around caught sight of a huge cinamon bear coming in his direction, gathering berries on his way through the bushes. Johnson had only five shells, and hesitated before firing. When he finally did shoot he only hit the animal on the foot, and stirred up its fighting spirit. A second shot caught it in the stomach and made stirred up its fighting spirit. A second shot caught it in the stomach and made it hesitate in its onward rush. A third and fourth shot went wild, and then the hunter took to his heels, deep in the belief that the bear was close upon him. Half a mile further down fifty yards only separated the hunted and the hunter, whichever was which, so Johnson fired his last shot, with a careful aim. It brought the brute down. But just then Johnson saw two other bears coming across the canyon other bears coming across the canyon no doubt to investigate the cause of their companion's trouble, and John-son departed for home. Next morning son departed for home. Next morning he returned with a wagen, and hauled the animal to town, where he disposed of it to a local butcher for $50.

Hunters are now on the trail of the other two bears and expect to bag them before returning from the chase.

Saved His life.

J. W. Davenport, Wingo, Ky., writes, June 14, 1902; "I want to tell you I believe Ballard's Snow Liniment saved my life. I was under the treatment of two doctors, and they told me one of my lungs was entirely gone, and the other badly affected. I also had a lump in my side. I don't think that I could have lived over two months longer, I was induced by a friend to try Ballard's Snow Liniment. The first aplication gave me great relief; two fifty cent bottles cured me sound and well. It is a wenderful medicine and I recommend it to suffering humanity." Zic. 50c, $1.09. Sold by Z. C. M. I. Amusements

"A Runaway Match," which opened at the Grand last night, had nothing to offer in the way of good acting or beautiful scenery, but the plot was of the rapid fire order, with a laugh for every minute. The play is a typical comedy of complicated mistakes, which the right woman marries the wrong man, and the right man mar-ries the wrong woman, and there is continual trouble till the mistakes are finally straightened out, as the last cur-The comedy was full tain falls. The comedy was full of fun, and it was mostly made by Ed. E. Perry as Solomon Short, and Frank Appleton as Blunt Barker, the detec-tive. In the last act they did a speci-alty "stunt" that was the best feature the play, and kept the house rollick of the play, and kept the house rollicking in laughter while it lasted. Specialtles were hung on the light plot at every available turn, and some of them were passable. A considerate stage manager ought, however, to prevent Jack Prentice and Myrle Bunn from singing their duet number, in the interest of a long suffering public, which prefers at least a suspicion of music with its songs. With the exception of Perry and Ap-

Main Street. Only Six Pianos Left-Other Articles

Are Getting Scarce.

Of Young Bros. Co. at No. 38

There are only six pianos left in the store of Young Bros.' Co. this week. When the sale started there was an mmensecsto shrdlu hrdluuuuuuunna immense stock, but five or six a day soon depletes the largest stock. Those that are left are new and just as good as those that are gone out. Over 100 drop head Sewing Machines have been sold during the past week at $15.00 each, and If you want one it's up to you to hurry, as there are few left. There are a few other at slightly advanced prices.

Those who contemplate buying anything in the music line this fall will do well to accept the advice of the sage and "Do it now."

Perhaps the greatest reductions are made on pianos. These are worth $25000, and will be sold for $150.09, and others at the same propor-

The latest and best in sheet music, most of it worth up to 60c apiece, will be sold for 10c each. No reserve.

This stock is going fast. Everything in the entire stock is of-fered and nothing is withheld from this There are but six buying days before this sale closes, and the removal be-gins. So come quick and select your
